MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Training

SUBJECT : Course Report for CIA Today & Tomorrow,
25-28 March 1975

1. CIA Today & Tomorrow No. 3-75 was held in the Headquarters Auditorium on 25-27 March. A fourth day for DDO personnel only was held on 28 March. Almost 200 Agency employees attended, representing all Directorates and the DCI's complex. [REDACTED] served as Course Chairman, assisted by [REDACTED]

2. Course Content: In line with the course's objective, "to update the participants on recent developments and future programs in the Agency and the Intelligence Community," we asked the Agency's key officials to emphasize the Agency's present and future. In addition, several special topics of current interest were covered--Law of the Sea, Economic Policy Support, and the Agency's Public Image.

3. Administrative problems were practically non-existent. There was only one last minute speaker replacement--Sayre Stevens for Carl Duckett. At the request of our non-official cover training compatriots, we videotaped six of the speakers: Charles Kane, General Wilson, Angus Thuermer, George Cary, [REDACTED] and the Director. STATINTL The bright lights usually used for taping were reduced in intensity and the atmosphere was much better for the speakers, with no loss in quality on the tapes.

4. As usual with auditorium programs, questioning by the audience was generally limited, with few exceptions. Most effective and best received speakers included General Wilson, [REDACTED], Angus Thuermer, and Sayre Stevens. The Director, as usual, was impressive. He spoke for about 20 minutes on the current investigations and the future of the Agency and then responded to questions from the audience.

5. A brief oral evaluation session was highlighted by the feeling that some of the speakers addressed the Agency past and present but said little or nothing about the future. This has been a continuing problem which we have slowly been resolving with the speakers. Mr. Wells' presentation, however, was mentioned informally by several participants as an outstanding contribution because of its long view and imaginative speculation on intelligence targets of the future. The suggestion was also advanced during the course that a schedule of five morning sessions instead of three full days might be better for the attendees and their workloads. From our standpoint this would not be administratively feasible. Most of the private comments on the course were laudatory.

6. The fourth day (28 March) was run as a separate program for DDO personnel only. [REDACTED] was the STATINTL coordinator, working closely with [REDACTED] on the STATINTL program. The morning was devoted to career management. The group was divided into two sections, the professional careerists meeting with [REDACTED] and the clerical STATINTL group with [REDACTED]. In the afternoon, the entire group heard [REDACTED] discuss the China target and [REDACTED] the Soviet target. Fifty-nine DDO'ers attended the morning sessions and 57 the afternoon program. The day appeared to be well-received. Several people volunteered the suggestion that the morning program should be longer. Because of the similarity of the two operational discussions, they might well be combined or limited to the Soviet target.

MEMORANDUM FOR: TO ALL TRO's (and 1 copy to all STO
SUBJECT : Change in Registration Procedures for CIA Today and Tomorrow

1. In the past, a sizable number of registrants for the CIA Today and Tomorrow have failed to show up for the course, because their Form 73's were submitted to OTR several months in advance, they had forgotten about the program, had failed to be notified, or had made other commitments.
2. With an attendance of between 200-250 Agency personnel at each running, it is impossible for OTR to contact each registrant just prior to the program and remind him of course dates.
3. For these reasons, we are returning all forms received to date, and ask they be resubmitted to OTR after 24 February for the 25-27 March running of the course, after checking to make sure each individual still plans to attend. There are no quotas for this course; receipt of the Form 73 will constitute automatic enrollment. The registration deadline will be 11 March 1975. For your information, the second running in CY-1975 of CIA Today and Tomorrow will be held 17-19 June. For each of these courses, as in the past, a fourth day will be held for DDO personnel only.

4. Please send Form 73's to: Training Assistant, CIA Today and Tomorrow, Room 926 Chamber of Commerce Building. For further information, call [REDACTED] on STATINTL x2127.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief, Registration Group, SRS

SUBJECT : Requested Change of Course Date
CIA Today and Tomorrow

1. In the Intelligence Institute Schedule of Courses submitted to you recently, a CIA Today and Tomorrow Course was scheduled for 11-14 March 1975. I should like to request a re-scheduling of this course to 25-26 March, in order that we may maintain the policy of scheduling our Guest Speaker Program on the second Tuesday of each month.
